

I find the current rating system for violence for children to be inadequate. As an elementary school principal, I find that children are exposed to too much violence through the media, and that includes news coverage, whether through programmed coverage, or "updates". A much more conservative approach is needed. Actually, I would like to see far less violence made available during hours viewable by children. More stringent standards and restrictions are necessary.